Performance Commentary

The fund delivered a solid return in May and was ahead of global equity markets. German medical technology company MagForce rose sharply on news of an increased CEO ownership stake and confirmation of positive business developments. Another major contributor was sports apparel company Fila Korea. The company recently listed Titleist owner Acushnet in the US, leaving the core operating franchise trading at a large discount to fair value. For the year, South Korean discounter E-Mart has been the strongest performer, rising more than 35% as the company has turned around its core hypermarkets concept and continues to be solidly backed by asset values in real estate and non-core holdings. Also, the fund's participation in the IPO of Philips Lighting has been positively rewarded as the shares are up more than 60% since introduction one year ago. We sold down our position in both E-Mart and Philips Lighting as the stocks approached our price targets. Despite posting solid fundamental results for the last quarter, Brazilian food-company JBS was a negative contributor as the owners of the company settled a variety of allegations with authorities. Whiting Petroleum is one of the negative contributors for the month and year. Fundamental results have been fairly strong but the stock has been pressured by the lower price of oil. We initiated one new position in Japanese Bank of Kyoto, which we believe is substantially mispriced considering its asset base and core banking operation.
