

Performance Commentary

Global equity markets soared in November as news of a vaccine triggered a sharp upward move and spurred a rotation into market laggards. SKAGEN Global underperformed the benchmark in November, mainly due to underexposure to the highly cyclical stocks which benefited from the rotation. The fund's top absolute performer was the French family-controlled luxury goods company LVMH which rose together with other cyclical stocks. The worst performer was the Danish logistics provider DSV which likely pulled back due to profit-taking after strong performance. The fund initiated a new position in the global financial platform company Intuit which is primarily known for its tax and accounting software. Its attractive cash-generative business model coupled with its clear focus on customer satisfaction and innovation appear undervalued from a long-term perspective. We sold our final stake in the specialty insurer Beazley. While the industry backdrop has admittedly been challenging over the past few years, Beazley's relative underwriting advantage appears to have faded and this dented our investment case. In addition, we exited the German reinsurer Hannover Re as fundamentals have deteriorated in the wake of the pandemic and reserve buffers continue to shrink. The fund also exited the US media conglomerate Comcast. The portfolio remains attractively valued.

The fund selects undervalued companies from around the world, including emerging markets, with attractive risk-reward for long-term investors.

The objective is to provide the best possible risk adjusted return.

The fund is suitable for those with at least a five year investment horizon.
