

Performance Commentary

Global equity markets zig-zagged in early 2021 with pronounced strengths and weaknesses in select areas. The rollout of the vaccine continues to be the focal point for near-term developments. SKAGEN Global underperformed its benchmark in January. However, the earnings season is off to a good start with strong reports from our holdings LVMH and Nasdaq and exceptionally strong reports from our high-conviction positions Microsoft and Abbott Laboratories. We see significant upside in all these names over our multi-year investment horizon. The fund's top absolute performer was the healthcare conglomerate Abbott Laboratories which released an impressive quarterly report demonstrating superb near-term execution and an attractive fundamental outlook over the medium term. The worst performer in absolute terms was the payment company Visa which faces headwinds in its lucrative travel segment as the pandemic has stifled demand for international travel. We cannot pinpoint exactly when the global travel restrictions will ease, but we think the long-term investment case remains compelling and this blip may turn out to be a good buying opportunity. We exited our position in McDonald's to prioritise higher conviction names in the fund. We also offloaded our few remaining shares in the risk and advisory company Marsh & McLennan as our proprietary analysis indicates that its moat appears to be narrowing.

The fund selects undervalued companies from around the world, including emerging markets, with attractive risk-reward for long-term investors.

The objective is to provide the best possible risk adjusted return.

The fund is suitable for those with at least a five year investment horizon.
