Investment strategy

The fund selects undervalued companies from around the world, including emerging markets, with attractive risk-reward for long-term investors. The fund is suitable for those with at least a five year investment horizon. Subscriptions are made in fund units and not directly in stocks or other securities. The benchmark reflects the fund's investment mandate. Since the fund is actively managed, the portfolio will deviate from the composition of the benchmark.

Monthly commentary, August 2023

Global equities declined slightly in August after a solid summer session. For the market as a whole, the reporting season has largely been as expected with only a few minor surprises. Commodity prices were relatively stable. Geopolitical instability in Africa increased further following a military coup in Gabon – this is the ninth military coup in sub-Saharan Africa over the past three years.

SKAGEN Global underperformed its benchmark index in August. The fund's top three absolute performers were the US insurance broker Brown & Brown, the payment giant Mastercard and the risk advisory firm Marsh & McLennan. All three companies presented good quarterly reports demonstrating their ability to navigate the current market landscape combined with optimism for the coming quarters. We also believe the companies to be relatively resilient when it comes to dealing with an environment featuring higher inflation.

The three worst performers in absolute terms were the US chain of low-price stores Dollar General, the premium global cosmetics company Estee Lauder and the luxury behemoth LVMH. So far this year, both Dollar General and Estee Lauder have been particularly weak with poor share price performance. The common underlying reasons include inventory overstocking and operational hiccups. Estee Lauder has suffered in China as the post-pandemic demand recovery for its products has lagged expectations.

Dollar General has seen its low-income customers stung by inflation and not much compensatory trade-down from the middle-income segment, which is an unusual dynamic in an inflationary environment. With sentiment appearing to be excessively negative after multiple consecutive guide-downs, these stocks should offer plenty of upside if and when financial results improve. We continue to monitor the investment cases closely.

The investor conference season is upon us, and we look forward to hearing more from the management teams of our holdings. The SKAGEN Global portfolio is attractively valued for long-term investors. Further updates and comments on portfolio trading activity, if any, will follow at the end of the third quarter.
