Risk profile (SRI)

We have classified this product as 4 out of 7, which is a medium risk class.

The summary risk indicator is a guide to the level of risk of this product compared to other products. It shows how likely it is that the product will lose money because of movements in the markets. A medium risk class rates the potential losses from future performance at a medium level. Other risks materially relevant to the PRIIP not included in the summary risk indicator: Event risk, liquidity risk, operational risk, counterparty risk, derivatives risk and currency risk. If the fund invests in securities in a currency other than the fund's base currency, the value is affected by changes in the exchange rate. In addition, the value of your payout may be affected if your local currency is different from the fund's currency. This product does not include any protection from future market performance so you could lose some or all of your investment.

Portfolio manager commentary, April 2026

Global equity markets rose in April as the US military actions against Iran came to a halt. The oil price fluctuated significantly in line with the daily news flow. In the bond market, the US generic 10-year government bond yield stayed above 4.3%. AI remained in the limelight during the Q1 reporting season that largely overcame macro challenges.

SKAGEN Global underperformed its benchmark index in April. The fund's three best performers measured by absolute return contribution were Alphabet (Google), Amazon and TMX Group. Alphabet (Google) has launched a remarkable comeback over the past twelve months. Only a year ago, financial commentators were predicting the demise of the company as ChatGPT would purportedly demolish the Search business. Lately, however, these previously loud sceptical voices have fallen silent. Meanwhile, the Google franchise is thriving, and the company is on the offensive in several areas. The cloud business is experiencing impressive growth with segment revenue +63% year-over-year. TPU hardware sales figures were also strong. In addition, Google seems to be toning down its political rhetoric and rather channelling employees' energy into winning new business. The net result of all this has been a phenomenal stock price recovery – the stock has more than doubled over the past 12 months. This exemplifies how contrarian thinking grounded in fact-based analysis can pay off handsomely.

Amazon, the other tech giant in the SKAGEN Global portfolio, also delivered a strong Q1 report demonstrating the power of the AWS franchise which remains the dominant force in the cloud world. TMX Group (TMX), the Canadian stock exchange operator, bounced back strongly (+25%) after the sharp – but in our view unwarranted – sell-off during the AI-scare back in February. As we have repeatedly highlighted, AI agents need data for their models but the data generated by TMX is proprietary. By definition, this data is owned by TMX and thus not readily available for free or easily replicable by AI models. The data needs to be purchased from TMX and this acts as a strong layer of protection against AI agents. Additionally, the Q1 report from TMX demonstrated that the company is making progress in reaching its explicit long-term targets. We would not be surprised to see TMX hit some of the milestones planned for 2030 as early as 2028 or 2029. Considering the TMX stock price is now well into positive territory for the year, the abovementioned sell-off (so far) seems to have been an overreaction that presented a rare buying opportunity. We believe this will be the case also for many of our other holdings that have yet to fully recover, e.g., Moody's, RELX and the insurance brokers.

The fund's three largest detractors measured by absolute return contribution were Abbott Laboratories, Marsh & McLennan and Brown & Brown. Abbott Laboratories (Abbott) slightly lowered annual guidance in their Q1 report that was below our expectations. While Abbott continues to do well in its diabetes monitoring franchise, the diagnostics division has reported lower growth post-COVID. The acquisition of Exact Sciences in late 2025 is expected to help this leg of the business pick up the pace, but we would have preferred to see organic growth. The stock is not expensive, but we are looking for better execution from management, which is probably a pre-requisite for the stock to re-rate. Earlier in the year, the AI-scare also affected the insurance brokers but so far there are no tangible signs that AI will diminish their grip on the insurance market. On the contrary, these companies may well benefit from implementing AI solutions to eke out further efficiencies and thus enhance margins. Our two insurance brokers, Marsh & McLennan and family-controlled Brown & Brown, reported Q1 results in-line with our expectations. The stocks drifted lower during the month and both continue to look significantly undervalued.

Over the next few weeks, the SKAGEN Global team will attend meetings, investor seminars and capital market days with our portfolio holdings. We look forward to engaging with our companies and gaining further insights into the state of the business. More to follow on this topic in later fund updates. We believe the fund is materially undervalued and well positioned for long-term investors looking for prudent alternatives to a concentrated global index dominated by consensus holdings often trading at stretched valuations. We will provide information about portfolio activity, if any, at quarter end.

Sustainability

SKAGEN's approach to sustainability

Our ESG approach is built on four pillars. In keeping with SKAGEN's active investment philosophy, our sustainability activities centre on active engagement with our holding companies, which is where we believe we can have the greatest impact. We recognise, however, that the full potential of a sustainable investment strategy is best realised when combining the following four pillars.

- ✓ Exclusion
- ✓ Enhanced due diligence
- ✓ ESG factsheet
- ✓ Active ownership

Article 8

Sustainable Finance Disclosure Regulation (SFDR)

The product promotes environmental and social characteristics by directing its capital towards companies and issuers that meet defined ESG (environmental, social and governance) criteria. This is achieved through compliance with international norms and conventions, by taking into account negative impacts on sustainable development (PAI) and through product- or activity-based exclusions. See the prospectus for more information on the products sustainability characteristics.
