

Performance Commentary

There was a great deal of volatility in July, although the large real estate markets ended the month flatish. As expected, economies shrank at record levels both in the US and Europe. The Federal Reserve extended most of its emergency lending programs and the EU reached a historic deal on a pandemic recovery package. Q2 reports were fairly positive as the market focused on rent collection. Logistics, data centres and residential subsegments once again drove the performance in the portfolio in July due to their resilience to the pandemic. The Finnish residential operator Kojamo was the best performer followed by the US data centre holding Equinix. Brazilian LOG did well after a very strong report. The worst performer was the Japanese conglomerate Mitsui Fudosan after a resurgence of Covid-19 cases in Tokyo that could hurt earnings. Real estate continues to be a laggard, despite massive stimulus and very low interest rates. The pandemic continues to eat into the real economy which is bad for all sectors. Polarisation will continue among the different real estate segments, and SKAGEN m2 continues to focus on companies that we consider to be resilient in trend-driven subsegments. The long-term prospects are positive, although real estate will not be immune to challenges caused by the deteriorating macroeconomic environment.

The fund gives access to a normally inaccessible global real estate market. The fund selects low-priced, high-quality real estate companies from around the world. The objective is to provide the best possible risk adjusted return. The fund is suitable for those with at least a five year investment horizon.
