Performance Commentary

There was some relief for real estate at the end of October, mainly due to strong US macro numbers and central banks in Canada and Australia signalling that their interest rate hike campaigns are coming to an end. However, rates continue to rise faster than at any other time in recent history. During the month, US 10-year bonds also reached levels not seen in a long time. The market has now broadly recalibrated valuation with the higher cost of capital and potential recession. A lot of the bad news is already priced in. Investors should consider careful real estate positioning before the cycle turns positive again, whenever that may be. However, as always, things can get worse before they get better. The fund's top contributors were some of the previous month's detractors with Norwegian Self Storage Group as the main contributor followed by another Scandinavian name, the logistics operator Catena. On the negative side, the Pan Asian logistics operator ESR was the largest detractor after continued negative economic macro signals from China. SKAGEN m2 continues to focus on resilient companies in trend driven subsegments that are mispriced, can perform in various market conditions, have solid balance sheets, and are well positioned for inflation.

The fund gives access to a normally inaccessible global real estate market. The fund selects low-priced, high-quality real estate companies from around the world. The objective is to provide the best possible risk adjusted return. The fund is suitable for those with at least a five year investment horizon. Subscriptions are made in fund units and not directly in stocks or other securities. The fund has risk profile 6. The benchmark reflects the fund's investment mandate. Since the fund is actively managed, the portfolio will deviate from the composition of the benchmark.
