Investment strategy

SKAGEN m2 provides exposure to a normally difficult to access global real estate market. The fund selects low-priced, high-quality real estate companies from around the world. The fund is suitable for those with at least a five year investment horizon. Subscriptions are made in fund units and not directly in stocks or other securities. The benchmark reflects the fund's investment mandate. Since the fund is actively managed, the portfolio will deviate from the composition of the benchmark.

Monthly commentary, May 2025

SKAGEN m2 delivered a strong performance in May, significantly outperforming the global real estate market for the month. Year to date, it remains ahead of both the global real estate index and the broader global equities index.

So far this year, the real estate sector has shown slightly greater resilience than the wider equity market, supported by solid cash flows and early signs that the real estate cycle is turning upward. Historically, listed real estate has tended to lead broader market recoveries, reinforcing the view that the current downturn may present an attractive entry point into the sector.

In May, the fund's top performer was U.S.-based digital infrastructure platform DigitalBridge, followed by Norwegian Public Property Invest (PPI) and UK-listed tower company Helios. DigitalBridge rose more than 30% in local currency on reports that it is nearing a potential sale to the alternatives platform 26North. While no official bid has been made, we continue to view the company as significantly undervalued and do not expect a sale to proceed at current share price levels. PPI also had an active month, announcing several transactions, the most notable being the acquisition of critical infrastructure assets from Aker Property Group. The deal, structured as a mix of cash and shares, resulted in Aker acquiring a 24.6% stake in PPI, making it the company's second-largest shareholder.

On the downside, the largest detractors in May were cold storage provider Americold, European tower operator Cellnex, and residential rental REIT Independence Realty Trust (IRT). Americold has faced short-term headwinds due to excess capacity and concerns over trade tariffs, which have weighed on its share price. Nevertheless, the company owns a unique, hard-to-replicate cold storage network strategically positioned to benefit from long-term structural growth in food distribution and logistics. We continue to believe the stock remains significantly undervalued.

We remain focused on resilient companies operating in trend-driven subsegments that are undervalued but have the potential to thrive in various market conditions. These companies typically have solid balance sheets, an increasingly important factor as financials improve across the sector. The portfolio remains strategically overweight in high-growth real estate segments, including digital real estate, housing, and warehouses – sectors poised to benefit from structural demand trends and a shifting yield curve as interest rates decline. Given that real estate is the world's largest asset class, it deserves your attention – don't overlook the opportunities it presents!
