

Performance Commentary

The Corona virus scare intensified in February, causing increased financial market volatility. The flight to safety continued and the long-term (10-year) yields in the US and Germany fell by 40 and 20 basis points respectively. The escalating volatility at the end of February led to a sharp rise in the long-term interest rates in emerging markets and peripheral Europe. Moreover, currencies depreciated steeply versus the safe haven currencies of EUR, USD, CHF and JPY. In environments with high market volatility, Tellus will typically underperform the index due to the fund's underweight duration in safe haven markets. In addition, Tellus is not invested in Japan and JPY, which has a high weight in the benchmark index. The weakest performers in February were Mexico, Indonesia (EBRD), South Africa and UK. This was largely due to depreciating currencies. We invested in an IDR-denominated bond issued by the European Bank of Reconstruction and Development. The bond has a solid yield of 5.5% and we expect the currency to appreciate in the longer term. Furthermore, we increased our position in the Dominican Republic, reduced the position in Portugal and exited Greece.

SKAGEN Tellus invests primarily in bonds and certificates issued or guaranteed by governments from around the world.

The fund is suitable for those with at least a three year investment horizon. Investors must be able to tolerate currency fluctuations.
