Performance Commentary

Following a challenging end to the summer, equity markets rebounded in October with some early indications of lower inflation pressure going forward – particularly in the US. Results for the second quarter were also generally encouraging, showing earnings holding up better than feared. SKAGEN Vekst posted a positive return for the past month but lagged the benchmark. Our holdings in China were negatively impacted by the continued strict COVID policy in the country. One example is Ping An Insurance, where results reflected the challenge in making new sales in the current environment. The Norwegian fertiliser company Yara was the largest positive contributor to the fund's absolute return in October. The company once again delivered outstanding results showing strong profitability in a difficult operating environment. After an almost 1000% increase in share price since the bottom in March 2020, we sold out of Flex LNG as the stock hit our target price. We used the weakness in the Norwegian telecom operator Telenor to increase our position. We continue to favour attractively priced companies within the finance and energy sectors. These are also sectors where earnings expectations and valuation will not be unduly hurt in an environment with higher inflation.

SKAGEN Vekst invests in companies that are attractively priced relative to expected profitability and growth. The majority of the fund is invested in the Nordic region and the remainder worldwide. The objective is to provide the best possible risk adjusted return. The fund is suitable for those with at least a 5 year investment horizon. Subscriptions are made in fund units and not directly in stocks or other securities. The fund has risk profile 6. The benchmark reflects the fund's investment mandate. Since the fund is actively managed, the portfolio will deviate from the composition of the benchmark.
