Performance Commentary

Equity markets continued to move higher in November, driven by more signs that inflation pressure in the economy is easing. China was by far the strongest market last month, with renewed focus on a potential easing of the COVID lock-down policy next year. This was also reflected in SKAGEN Vekst, with the Chinese insurance company Ping An Insurance making the largest positive contribution to the fund's absolute return. Another strong performer was the Danish pharmaceutical company, Novo Nordisk. The company reported solid numbers for the third quarter, showing strong growth across its diabetes and obesity franchise. At the other end of the scale, the Norwegian fertiliser company Yara had a difficult month due to a combination of lower fertiliser prices and higher gas prices. We used the weakness in US tech shares to add to the position in Alphabet, the parent company of Google. After a very strong share price development this year, Hoegh Autoliners was sold out of the portfolio as the shares reached our target price. We continue to favour attractively priced companies within finance and energy. These are also sectors where earnings expectations and valuation will not be unduly hurt in an environment with higher inflation.

SKAGEN Vekst invests in companies that are attractively priced relative to expected profitability and growth. The majority of the fund is invested in the Nordic region and the remainder worldwide. The objective is to provide the best possible risk adjusted return. The fund is suitable for those with at least a 5 year investment horizon. Subscriptions are made in fund units and not directly in stocks or other securities. The fund has risk profile 6. The benchmark reflects the fund's investment mandate. Since the fund is actively managed, the portfolio will deviate from the composition of the benchmark.
